APPALLING CATASTROPHE. LAST HOURS OF A SINGLE GENTLEMAN-HE

Yesterday morning, at 11 o'clock precisely, an unfortunate young man, Charles Augus-Editors of the Standard, and authorized publishers tus Pipkin, suffered the extreme penalty of infatuation by expiating his attachment to Clara Amelia, in front of the altar railing of St. Barnaby's Church.

HISTORY OF THE CRIMINAL. All our citizens who were present at the pic nic given in Mantua, some two years ago, will recollect that Augustus was then introduced to Clara, and immediately began to pay her particular attentions. From that period their intimacy dates, and it was continued until it ended at last in the painful catastrophe of this morning.

Poor Pipkin had nearly attained his twenty-eighth year, but there is every reason to believe that, had not extreme impecuniosity prevented, his single life would earlier have come to an untimely end. A change for the better, however, occurred

If they desire the paper longer after that | thus became accessories to the awful calamity which has overthrown him in the hey-day

THE LAST HOURS. The unhappy young man passed the last night of his bachelor existence in his solitary chamber. From half-past eight to ten he was busily engaged in writing letters. Shortly after ten, his younger brother, Henry, knocked at the door, when the doomed man told him, in a firm voice, to "come in."

Upon being asked when he intended to go to bed, he replied, "not yet." The question was then asked him, "how he thought he would sleep;" to which his answer was, "pretty well." He then expressed a desire for a cigar and a glass of water, which were given to him. His brother now demanded of him if he would "want anything more that night." He said "nothing," in a firm

His affectionate relative then rose to take his leave, when the doomed man considerately advised him "to take care of himself." At precisely one minute after seven the next morning, the victim rose and promptly dressed himself. He had self-control enough to shave without the slightest injury, for not a single scratch appeared on his chin after the operation. It would seem that he devoted more than usual care to his toilette on this occasion. The wretched man was attired in a light blue frock coat, with frosted metal buttons, and white waistcoat, and nankin trowsers, with patent leather boots. Having descended the stairs with a quick step, he entered the apartment where his brother and a few friends were waiting. He shook hands cordially with all present, and on being asked how he had slept, answered, Very well;" and to the further demand to the state of his mind, he said "he felt happy," One of the party having suggested that it would be well to take "something" before the melancholy ceremony, he exclaimed with much emphasis, "Decidedly."-Breakfast was accordingly served, and the poor fellow ate the whole of a roll, a slice of toast, two sausages, and three eggs, washing the whole down with two large cups of cof-BLANKS, fee. In reply to expressions of astonishment on the part of the company, he said that "he never felt better in his life."

Having inquired the time, and ascertained that it was ten minutes of eleven, he remarked that "it would soon be over." His brother then asked if he could do anything more for him, when he said he should like to have a glass of ale. Putting it to his lips, he re-marked, "here's luck," and drank it with satisfaction satisfaction.

The fatal moment now approaching, he devoted the remainder of his time in distributing among his friends those articles which he would no longer want. To one he gave his cigar case, to another his tobacco stopper, and he charged his brother Henry with the care of his latch-key, with instructions to deliver it to his landlady with due

The clock at length struck eleven, and he was informed that a cab was at the door .-He merely said, "I am ready," and was conducted to the vehicle. Arriving at the tragical spot, a short delay took place, when they were joined by the lady, with her friends. Little was said on either side, but Clara, with customary decorum, shed tears.

Pipkin endeavored to preserve composure, but a slight twitching of his mouth and eyebrows proclaimed his inward agitation. The victim now walked side by side with Clara, with a firm step to the altar. He surveyed the imposing preparations with calmness, and gazed unmoved on the clergyman, who waited behind the railing. FINAL SCENE. The preliminaries being gone through with, and the prescribed melancholy formal-ities fini-hed, the usual question was put, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wed-ded wife?" To which the miserable youth replied in a distinct voice, "I will." He then put the fatal ring on Clara's finger, the hymenial noose was adjusted, and the poor fellow was launched into matrimony.

The constitutional Union men of Virginia speak of holding a State Convention, in Alexandria, next month. A correspondent informs us that nothing definite has yet been determined on, though he inclines to the opinion that the meeting will take place, as most of the leading Union men in the State have been written to on the subject. Until Congress marks out some definite line of policy, for the guidance of parties, we do not see how parties are to be formed in the South on any other principles than for or against the President. Thus far, Congress has given no encouragement to Union senti-ment in the South, and until it shows a determination to do so it can expect to find very few supporters in this section .- Rich-

GENERAL REMARKS.

Revenue Stamps may be used indiscriminately upon any of the matters or things enumerated in schedule B, except proprietary and playing card stamps, for which a special use has been provided. Postage stamps cannot be used in payment of the duty chargeable on instruments. It is the duty of the maker of an instrument to affix and cancel the stamp thereon. If he neglects to do so, the party for whom it is made, may stamp it before it is used; and if used after the 20th of July, 1864, and used without a stamp, it cannot afterwards be effectually stamped. Any failure upon the part of the maker of an instrument to appropriately stamp it, renders him liable to a penalty of two hundred dollars.

Suits are commenced in many States by other process than writ, viz: summons, warrants, publication, petition, &c., in which case these, as the original process, severally require stamps.

Writs of seira facias are subject to stamp duty as original processes.

The jurat of an atlidavit, taken before a Justice of the Peace, Notary Public, or other officer duly ings.

Certificates of loan in which there shall appear any printed or written evidence of an amount of money to be paid on demand or at any time designated, are subject to stamp duty as Promisory

Notes.

The assignment of a mortgage is subject to the same duty as that imposed upon the original instrument; that is to say for every sum of five hundred dollars, or any fractional part thereof, of the amount secared by the mortgage, at time of its assignment there must be affixed a stamp or stamps, denoting a duty of five cents.

When two or more persons join in the execution of an instrument, the stamps to which this instrument is liable under the law, may be affixed and ment is liable under the law, may be affixed and cancelled by one of the parties.

In conveyances of real estate, the law provides that the stamp affixed must answer to the value of the estate on interest conveyed. No stamp is required on any warrant of attorney accompanying a bond or note, when such bond or note has affixed thereto the stamp or bond or note has affixed thereto the stamp or stamps denoting the duty required, and whenever any bond or note is secured by mortgage, but one stamp duty is required on such papers, such stamp duty being the highest rates required for such instruments, or either of them. In such a case a note or memorandum of the value or denomination of the stamp affixed should be made upon the margin or in the acknowledgement of such instruments, or either of them. In such a case a note or memorandum of the value or denomination of the stamp affixed should be made upon the margin or in the acknowledgement of the instrument which is not stamped.
